

Contents

Introduction: Of water and monsters - Polina Ignatova	1-6
The Amabie: a Japanese prophetic chimera and chronotope amid political monstrosities - Claudia Merli	7-34
Floodwater ghosts as social criticism: a horror film and tropical storm Ondoy - Hazel T. Biana	35-48
Monster-producing islands: prospects for island detouring in contemporary times Virgilio A. Rivas	49-66
On the borderline of the worlds: Swamps in the mythopoetic world picture of the peoples of Russia - Olga Lavrenova	67-82
Minatory monsters for turbulent times: “the devil in the shape of a great fish” that presaged the English Civil War and other piscatorial prodigies - Robert L. France	83-112
Ancient sea monsters and a medieval hero: the nicoras of Beowulf - Ryan Denson	113-126
Fantastic marine creatures from the late Renaissance: Pietro Tacca’s fountains in Florence’s Piazza della Santissima Annunziata - Giorgio Verdiani, Paolo Formaglini & Filippo Giansanti	127-142
Aquatic mythologies: Divine, liminal and fantastic creatures in the Indian tradition - Stefano Beggiora	143-159
Morgawr and the folkloresque: (a study of a whopping fish tale) - Ronald M. James	161-172
Boat spirits, sea monsters and seal women: Fishermen and hidden aquatic dangers in the Faroe Islands - Firouz Gaini	173-185
Posidaeja and Mami Wata: The online afterlives of two mermaid goddesses - Martine Mussies	186-196
Merlerium: mermaids, mythology, desire and madness in Robert Eggers’ The Lighthouse (2019) - Philip Hayward	197-213

Islandness as narratives of relation - S. G. Waite	214-232
Ethics in small island research: Reflexively navigating multiple relations - Erika Anne Hayfield	233-249
From a fishing village to tourist destination: Hongjia village in northeastern China - Sa Haoxuan and Michael Fabyini	250-264
Exploring “Elsewhereland”: Places desired, remembered and dwelled: place experience of vacationers on Saaremaa Island, Estonia - Jana Raadik Cottrell & Stuart P. Cottrell	265-288
What’s in a name? The impact of disasters on islands’ reputations: the cases of Giglio and Ustica - Karl Agius & Godfrey Baldacchino	289-307

The historical origin of the Atlantic identity of the islands of Macaronesia - Javier Luis Álvarez Santos	308-326
Mary Ann Christian, exercising social and spatial agency: An isolated island case - Donald Patrick Albert	327-341