

Contents

Introduction - Philip Hayward	1-3
Mermaid iconography and early modern Anglo-American maritime culture - Vaughn Scribner	4-24
“The waters were made for her”: River Mumma beliefs in Jamaica - Hilary Sparkes	25-35
Tales from the Congo River: catching Mama Wata - Lesley Braun	36-51
Crossing merfolk narratives of the sacred - Jaloundra A. Davis	52-71
From sailor traps to tourist traps: Mermaid themed tourism in the USA - Vaughn Scribner	72-83
Mermaids in H. G. Wells’s The Sea Lady: A Tissue of Moonshine - Emily Alder	84-100
Mermaids in late 19th-mid 20th Century Australian children’s fiction - Marea Mitchell	101-109
Mermaid allusions and star promotion in the Greek video-film Gorgona (1987) - Panayiota Mini	110-124
Mermaids and corporate branding - Susan C. Graham	125-155
Melusine as emblem of truth / The Mystery of Melusine - Cecilia Inkol	156-161
Nix: a mythological nudist lost in Swedish suburbia - Olle Jilkén	162-175
 Mermaid place names section:
Mermaid place names and folklore in Britain - Simon Young	176-201
Mermaid toponyms in the West Indies - Simon Young	202-220
Above and below: mermaid and siren place names in Canada - Philip Hayward	221-234
Few and far between: The distribution of mermaid, siren and sirena place names across the USA - Vaughn Allan	235-238
Shipped ashore: mermaid place names in Australia - Christian Fleury and Philip Hayward	239-255
Response - Joshua Nash	256-262